RELICS OF THE PAST.

As promised, the TIMES prints this Below will be found a list of the prize morning a review of General EARLY'S military career from the incisive pen of Major LACY. The sketch is readable from beginning to end but there is no information in it that was not known before. Major LACY tells us that General EARL; did not make a very brilliant success as a soldier. This was a self-evident proposition. Had he done so he would not have been relieved from his command by General Lee. But that he was a faithful, trustworthy officer no one will deny. He loved the new nation with a great, strong, everlasting love that of itself is most creditable.

Both of the men en gaged in this controversy are unique and picturesque figures of the past, and as such command a certain kind of attention. Both of them have made their impres on that past, and both will have a few 2492 lines in the history of the great contest when it comes to be written. Special Rates arranged with

But they, themselves, as well as their controversity are only interesting to the present generation in the same light as Barnum or Forepaugh is interesting. They have made a show of themselves and we are the audience.

THE FORCE BILL'S FATE. It has now been settled beyond doubt, if the Washington correspondents are to be believed, that the Federal Elections bill will not bo taken up by the Sena'e this session.

This is a hard blow to the bill. When one of them ever disappears is the frozen holes of the documen room, there is no telling when it will see the light of day again. Spider build their webs and raise interesting families, varying the monotony of their lives by scooping in the frisk fly. But no man careth to resurrec. the bill until it has grown old and faded

The conservative men in both parties are glad that this will be the tate of the bill. Soon the representatives will be returning home and then ar opportunity will present itself to then to find the real thoughts of their constituents on the subject. They have

Virginia bonds has returned to this

"No farther details are yet ready," says a special to the Baltimore Sun, "until the bonds have been pooled under the terms of the adjustment scheme. The plan of settlement wil then be laid before the advisory committee, of which Mr. Cleveland is the head, and when they pass on it it will be presented to the Virginia Legislature for confirmation. The London bondholders have been thoroughly won over to the proposition by Mr. Bull's efforts, and have entire confidence in the speedy and practical solution of the dificulties that here so long surrounded the settlement of the debt."

A SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

We print in our news columns this morning reports from all parts of the tal trees, plants, vines, etc., in any Southwest, giving the condition of the quantity. Fine lot of roses and bedmorning reports from all parts of the correspondents of the Baltimore Sun. They will be found most interesting mr. B.R. Younger, our agent, is now in he city, and orders can be and valuable to everyone concerned in left with him at Nuchols, Abbitt & agricultural pursuits.

The prospects of the season are most encouraging, and there is not a doubt but what the Southwest is destined to be the garden spot of the State.
